THE TRANSFORMATIVE POWER OF ORGANIZATIONS AND MARKETS

At Kellogg, we take a carefully balanced yet dynamic approach to management education, an approach that marries the study of organizations with the study of the processes – the dynamic push and pull – that drive consumer, business and financial markets forward.

Across our entire array of majors and courses, you will find academic excellence, experiential learning and an emphasis on working in teams toward ambitious goals. With virtually unlimited choice in your course of study, you have the flexibility to fit your academic program precisely to your learning objectives and career goals.

Here, you will learn from faculty members who are not only recognized experts and researchers in economics, finance, management, psychology and marketing, but also seasoned practitioners and trusted advisors to corporate boards, industries and governments worldwide. The insights you gain today from engaging directly with them in the classroom and from on-the-ground learning experiences will prepare you to take on complex business challenges tomorrow.

You will also discover how the diversity of your classmates – their educations, career aspirations, cultures and life interests – enriches your learning with new perspectives and prepares you to lead with confidence anytime, anywhere.

THIS IS HOW WE EQUIP TOMORROW'S LEADERS TO MAKE MEANINGFUL DIFFERENCES WHEREVER THEY GO. THIS IS HOW THEY LEARN TO THINK BRAVELY.

A STRONG MANAGERIAL FOUNDATION AND THE HARD SKILLS I WANTED

“I KNOW HOW TO ASK THE RIGHT QUESTIONS, AND I HAVE THE CONFIDENCE AND TECHNICAL SKILLS TO LEAD EFFECTIVELY.”

Before grad school, I worked in pharmaceutical research and segued to sales and marketing. I knew I wanted to stay in sales, but needed a stronger marketing and managerial foundation.

Every school has a different value proposition, but I didn't find a lot of them that considered management to be the core issue. I decided I wanted a well-rounded education. Kellogg offered the best combination, including the hard skills I wanted.

I've learned about the science of collaboration and getting the right people together. The teams our professors create are so much better than working alone. You learn about balancing personalities, experience levels and strengths. Balance is truly what gets you results. Everyone's voice is heard.

I've been exposed to so many industries and professions. Finance became my favorite course, and I will pursue that. It's a very different focus for me, but I've been given the opportunity to explore all of my talents. I know what it takes to ask the right questions, and I have the confidence and technical skills to lead effectively.

I'm looking into emerging markets, too. I may return to Africa someday, but I'm learning now to build global partnerships. I'll leave here knowing what management means in other countries and how to effectively manage and motivate those cultures.

ANALYTICS AND CREATIVITY COMBINED

“THAT FEELING OF ‘ANYTHING’S POSSIBLE’ IS WHY KELLOGG REALLY APPEALED TO ME. YOU ARRIVE ON CAMPUS AND CAN IMMEDIATELY CONTRIBUTE.”

I worked in investment banking, consumer products and Latin American capital markets. I didn’t want to stay in that world. I knew I had to expand my marketing expertise when I began looking forward to researching the companies, meeting with management teams and following product development from idea to shelf. My experience with a small startup opened my eyes to the vast marketing possibilities, especially the combination of analytics and creativity. Any idea I had, as long as I could prove the use of it, was not only viable, but do-able.

That feeling of “anything’s possible” is why Kellogg really appealed to me. You arrive on campus and can immediately contribute. Professionally, co-workers noticed I was always hungry for something different. Even if the position or role was unclear, I went for it. While it was scary at times, it was invigorating to determine my path. I brought that same sense of adventure to the classroom and to my team projects. I improved my listening skills and stayed open to ideas.

I just finished a marketing research project. It was more analytical, but for this project, I actually got to use these research approaches and see them in action. I was applying data and solving real problems for real clients. That very moment, my perception became reality.

MOST POPULAR MAJORS OF KELLOGG FULL-TIME MBA STUDENTS ARE INDICATED IN PURPLE

THE CORE CURRICULUM FOR THE TWO-YEAR MBA PROGRAM CONSISTS OF NINE COURSES IN THE EIGHT AREAS INDICATED WITH

DISCIPLINE AND CHOICE. A SOLID CORE. MULTIPLE MAJORS.

A STRONG FOUNDATION

Kellogg students become firmly grounded in the fundamentals of effective management through completion of our MBA core curriculum. This solid foundation in the essential business disciplines prepares you to lead, manage and communicate effectively wherever your career takes you. Beyond the core, you will find extraordinary flexibility in the Kellogg curriculum.

MAJOR FLEXIBILITY

From our extensive and evolving catalog of courses and majors, you can customize a program of study that aligns with your professional aspirations and career goals. Every department and professional program offers one or more academic majors.

Students often select majors that combine complementary academic disciplines and professional and interdisciplinary programs. For example, if you have an entrepreneurial spirit, you might major in Management & Strategy, Finance, and Entrepreneurship & Innovation. A fellow student interested in historic preservation trusts might focus on Marketing, Social Enterprise at Kellogg (SEEK), and Real Estate.

Because Kellogg believes that every moment spent on coursework should engage and challenge you, we encourage students to request a waiver of core courses that closely resemble academic work previously completed. Approximately half of our students waive at least one course, which enables them to choose a more advanced elective in the same area.

ENGAGE FEARLESSLY. LEARN BY DOING.

AN ENVIRONMENT THAT ENCOURAGES BOLD THINKING AND RISK TAKING.

Kellogg coursework and team projects challenge you to make critical connections between academic theory and real-world practice and then put your best thinking to the test. When you engage fearlessly in this supportive environment, you can learn as much from falling short of the ideal as you can from your unqualified successes.

At Kellogg, you will work closely with faculty members and fellow students – often in collaboration with alumni and corporate partners – to explore innovative management concepts and practices and how to apply them directly to critical business issues. Such teamwork exposes you to a wide range of ideas and cross-functional approaches to problem solving.

Working in teams, you also build the strong communication and interpersonal skills that are essential to effective leadership. These distinctive characteristics of the Kellogg MBA are why organizations consistently give our graduates high ratings on their ability to lead, inspire and influence others.

LOCALLY GROUNDED. GLOBALLY ATTUNED.

Businesses thrive by organizing their resources in a way that is locally grounded but globally attuned. Kellogg prepares you to manage in a global economy by helping you develop a broader, more fully informed view of the world along multiple dimensions.

Living and studying on campus, you gain direct insights into the diverse cultures and national origins represented in the Kellogg community. Roughly one-third of our students come to Kellogg from outside North America. Approximately one in four Kellogg faculty members were born and educated abroad, and many others have studied or taught at universities outside the United States.

The International Business major is one of the school's most popular, and global issues are interwoven throughout the curriculum. Kellogg also sponsors exchange programs with 34 management schools around the world. Our global presence opens up even more opportunities for you to expand your global perspective.

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS MAJOR. The Kellogg International Business major builds a deep understanding of the international dimensions of business operations and management in finance, marketing, organizations and management strategy.

GLOBAL INITIATIVES IN MANAGEMENT. In this intensive global business leadership course, teams of classmates with a faculty advisor create and engage in a challenging 10-week curriculum that culminates in a two-week international field experience. Participation builds valuable leadership skills and a keener awareness of the global business environment.

STUDENT EXCHANGE PROGRAMS. Exchange programs with other international institutions immerse students in the language and culture while they explore regional business issues and practices. Exchange programs for full-time students usually happen during the second quarter of the second year.

STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS. Many of the Kellogg School's student-run clubs have an international focus: Africa Business Club, Asian Management Association, Canada Club, Chinese Business Club, European Business Club, Hispanic Business Student Association, India Business Club, Korean Business Club, Latin American, Hispanic and Iberian Management Association and Middle East and North Africa Club.

KELLOGG INNOVATION NETWORK. The KIN Global Summit engages business executives, government officials and leading scholars in active dialogue to develop solutions for critical global issues. Kellogg students who take the opportunity to work on research projects related to these challenges are invited not only to present their research projects, but also to attend KIN Global as full delegates.

ACT, REFLECT AND LEARN FROM THE EXPERIENCE

Throughout the Kellogg Full-Time MBA Program – within the curriculum and well beyond – you will encounter life- and career-changing opportunities that enable and encourage you to act, reflect and learn from on-the-ground and in-the-field experience.

Intensive academic experiences such as the innovative, highly specialized Asset Management Practicum, in which students manage an actual portfolio, provide exposure to cutting-edge practices and direct connections to alumni professionals in the field.

For a distinctly different experiential challenge, the Medical Innovation Lab course teams Kellogg students with peers from Northwestern's medicine, law and engineering schools to develop – and often bring to market – innovative biotechnology products. Other experiential learning courses explore wide-ranging issues and interests.

Beyond the curriculum, but inextricably tied to it, events and conferences organized by students attract renowned speakers and participants who engage directly with students on critical topics and emerging trends. Student teams collaborate to compete in programs like the annual Kellogg Cup business plan competitions. Students also take on pro bono consulting assignments with local nonprofits to hone leadership skills in socially responsible endeavors.

THE ADMISSIONS COMMITTEE EVALUATES EACH CANDIDATE'S ACADEMIC ABILITY, CAREER PROGRESS, CAREER GOALS, EVIDENCE OF LEADERSHIP, EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES, INTERPERSONAL SKILLS AND CHARACTER. INDIVIDUALS HOLDING A BACHELOR'S DEGREE OR ITS EQUIVALENT FROM AN ACCREDITED COLLEGE OR UNIVERSITY ARE ELIGIBLE FOR CONSIDERATION. APPLICANTS ARE STRONGLY ENCOURAGED TO HAVE AT LEAST TWO YEARS OF FULL-TIME WORK EXPERIENCE UPON MATRICULATION.

PART I // Part I of the application requires candidates to fill out a data form, request an on-campus or off-campus interview and upload a résumé. The data form consists of biographical information, educational experience, academic honors, extracurricular activities, work history and self-reported GMAT/GRE and TOEFL scores.

INTERVIEW // Part I requires all applicants to request an on-campus or off-campus interview. Interviews can be conducted before submitting your essays. All interviews are conducted based on the résumé only. On-campus interviews may be scheduled after submission of Part I by calling the Office of Admissions at 847.491.3308. Off-campus interview assignments will be emailed within eight weeks of submitting Part I. An off-campus interview waiver may be granted for specific reasons, including high demand or remote locations. However, the Office of Admissions may contact candidates who receive a waiver for a phone interview when such an interview would be material for rendering a final decision.

PART II // Part II of the application consists of four essays, a scanned copy of all academic transcripts, two letters of recommendation, a scanned copy of your GMAT/GRE score and a scanned copy of your TOEFL score, if applicable. Part II should be submitted by the deadline that corresponds to the round in which you apply.

ESSAYS // Candidates are required to complete three long essays and one short essay. Re-applicants are required to complete an additional essay and have the option of completing the short essay. Essays provide an opportunity for the candidates to address their backgrounds, including work experience, career goals, personal characteristics and reasons for applying to Kellogg.

TRANSCRIPT // In Part II of the application, copies of transcripts may be scanned or uploaded in an electronic format. Accepted candidates who decide to enroll must provide official transcripts from all colleges, universities and professional schools attended. Transcripts from study abroad programs are not required. Transcripts must be written in English or accompanied by an official translated copy. JD-MBA applicants must submit separate copies of their transcripts to the Northwestern Law and to the Kellogg School before matriculating.

LETTERS OF RECOMMENDATION // Two completed letters of recommendation forms are required for admission. We would like to see one of these letters written by your current supervisor or manager. The second letter of recommendation should be from someone who can evaluate your professional performance and managerial and leadership potential. Please note that the application is not considered complete until Kellogg has received both recommendations. Additional letters of support are neither required nor encouraged.

GMAT/GRE // All applicants are required to submit a valid GMAT or GRE score. Either test must have been taken within the last five years. For applicants to the JD-MBA program, we accept only the GMAT.

TOEFL // Proficiency in reading, writing and speaking English is required of all Kellogg students. A valid score for the TOEFL is required for all non-U.S. citizens and non-U.S. permanent residents with a degree from an undergraduate or graduate university where English was not the language of instruction. The TOEFL will be waived for those who attended an undergraduate or graduate school where English was the only language of instruction.

APPLICATION FEE // Candidates are required to pay a non-refundable application fee of $250 and should remit payment electronically with the application.

FINANCIAL AID // Educational loans and scholarships are available to all students. Eligibility for most scholarships is based on financial need, merit and availability of funds. Grant awards are offered in combination with low-interest educational loans to U.S. citizens and permanent residents. Several educational loan programs are available to Kellogg students: the Federal Direct Stafford Loan (both subsidized and unsubsidized), the Perkins Loan, the Federal Direct Graduate Loan and the Northwestern Loan. Most loan awards are based on financial need.

MORE INFORMATION // For more detailed explanations about the application, application elements and application deadlines, please visit our website at kellogg.northwestern.edu/Programs/FullTimeMBA/Applying.
