Instructive, insightful, inspirational and, above all, impactful, this program delivers knowledge, tools and techniques you can apply immediately to the complex team challenges you face every day.

In this intensive program, members of top-tier faculty from Kellogg share their proven approaches to the art and science of teamwork — best practices that set the standard for complex organizational challenges in the dynamic business environment.

In this highly collaborative and interactive program, you will, alongside like-minded professionals, explore the intricacies of internal and external team dynamics and the complexities of managing these dynamics. Pre-program work, including a web survey, will help address your specific leadership goals. Post-program tools include opportunities to collaborate with Kellogg faculty on field research projects in your company and faculty-authored books and videos you can use with your team and organization.

“Leading High-Impact Teams helped me fine-tune my skills as a leader. Since attending, I have made several positive changes to my leadership style, and I have put a greater emphasis on connecting at a higher level with each member of my team.”
