Let's Make a Lasting Difference For Kids Nationwide
October 24th 10 am to 1pm in Delray Beach

Sunflower Creative Arts in Delray Beach has a great story to tell as an education nonprofit and pre-school (for 2-3 and 3-6 year olds) specializing in Play, Nature and the Arts. Come volunteer your expertise and Kellogg training to help them think through, prioritize and game plan several alternative revenue opportunities. Rather than having alumni volunteers paint a wall or weed a garden, we are inviting you to participate by helping this 30+ year organization develop transportable ideas and strategy to make a lasting impact and allow them to continue providing quality education to children in Florida and, perhaps, the country, for years to come.

This volunteer opportunity happens in two parts:

1. Register via Eventbrite. We'll then send you a link to watch a short webinar featuring Sunflower leaders and KCD event leader Rob Steir '91 outlining the two revenue-generating programs you'll be helping to develop.
2. Then, let us know if you'd like to attend the KCD event at Sunflower Creative Arts on Saturday, October 24 from 10 am to 1 pm (lunch and nearby social event afterwards, included, on Kellogg) for a collective strategy session to advise the organization on these two programs.

We have structured our Kellogg Cares Day to make a long-lasting impact for Sunflower --and we hope, during the day and potentially after, to lay the foundations for them to bring what they do to other communities in Florida and the country.

If you have children ages 2-7, please feel free to bring them along as they'll have activities set up with their teaching staff. If you have high schoolers, feel free to bring them as well as they can earn community service hours by helping to paint, garden and assist.
