Marketing and communications priorities

1. Unify marketing and communications

2. Revitalize the brand through innovation and product benefits

3. Adopt a client-centric approach through issuer and merchant co-marketing

4. Generate engagement via digital and social by continuing to migrate spend

5. Demonstrate value through data and analytics
1. Unify marketing and communications

Marketing and communications need to be integrated to breakthrough

- Paid, owned, earned distinction blurring as digital channels span stakeholders
- Breakthrough (recall) increasingly challenging

Paid (e.g., TV, print, OOH, etc.)
Owned (e.g., Visa.com, etc.)
Earned (e.g., PR, Twitter, LinkedIn, etc.)
The opportunity for Visa

Our new brand platform adopts a multi-stakeholder approach

One brand, one voice

“Audience First” approach

Integrated communications
2. Revitalize the brand through product benefits

Reinforce emotional affinity via innovation and tangible proof points

- Brand preference drives share-of-wallet and brand equity
- Brand equity driven by product feature and emotional connection

But...lead with people stories, not product stories

Everything we do must be human centric

• Embrace data to understand passions and aspirations

• Leverage data to be predictive and hyper relevant
3. Adopt a client-centric approach

Issuer and merchant co-marketing resources can be a key differentiator

• Investment in client marketing increasing
• Clients are activating our sponsorship assets
• Clients value the “how” as much as the “what”

4. Generate engagement via digital and social

Migration of spend continues as impact of digital grows

- Digital now 47% of media consumed, but only 27% of marketing spend

- Impact stronger in under 35s, who will be 44% of PCE by 2025

- Digital and social media are more efficient and engaging

a) Stop thinking about content in silos

‘Marketing orchestration’ is the new integrated marketing

• Idea centric
  – Rich, single minded ‘big idea’, deeply rooted in human truths and consumer behaviors

• Channel agnostic
  – Authentically choreographed communications, regardless of channel or device

• Design for the ‘mobile lifestyle’
b) Great content will drive our business

Real business results vs. engagement metrics

CONTENT
Consumer sees branded content

IMPACT EQUITY
Consumer perception of the brand is changed

MORE USAGE
Shift in perception leads to usage
c) Instigating a cultural revolution

We need to ‘walk the walk’

1. Reshape the marketing organization
2. Assign meaningful budgets
3. Embrace risk and invest in innovation
4. Surround ourselves with best-in-class partners
5. Move at the speed of culture
5. Demonstrate value through data and analytics

Big data makes marketing more measurable

- VisaNet sees more accounts than Facebook, Google, and Twitter
- VisaNet provides unique insights into attitudes, interests, and value
- And is highly actionable when enriched with client, marketing, and media data
